"Valeria House"

In the heart of Sant'Ambrogio sul Garigliano, a small and characteristic town in the province of Frosinone in Lazio, stands this semi-detached property in need of renovation, a house with great potential waiting to be restored to its original splendor.

The town, perched on a hill about 137 meters high overlooking the rolling hills of the Valle dei Santi and the winding course of the Garigliano River, combines the charm of a quiet provincial life with an enchanting natural landscape.

Sant'Ambrogio is a town rich in history and tradition, where the daily rhythm still retains the authentic feel of Italian village life, with folk festivals, cultural events, and a close-knit community.

The property is located entirely on the raised ground floor of a two-story building, offering a well-distributed surface area of approximately 89 m².

Upon entering, you enter a bright and welcoming space, with an eat-in kitchen ideal for both family moments and convivial dinners, a spacious living room that could become the social heart of the home, two large bedrooms and a bathroom in need of renovation.

The rooms, thanks to their regular configuration, allow for customized projects, ranging from modern restylings to renovations that respect the property's original character.

At the rear of the house, the property enjoys a small shared garden.

The property's location is another notable feature: while still immersed in the serenity of a residential setting typical of Italian villages, Sant'Ambrogio sul Garigliano is well connected to the main roads.

The town is easily reached by car via the A1 motorway (Autostrada del Sole), with the San Vittore and Cassino exits just a few kilometers away, allowing quick connections to Rome, Naples, and the entire national motorway system.

Alternatively, the area is served by regional bus lines such as those operated by COTRAL, which connect Sant'Ambrogio to larger towns and surrounding train stations, offering easy transportation options even without a vehicle.

This house represents a precious real estate opportunity for those looking to invest in a property with personality, in a quiet and harmonious setting that is also well-connected and full of potential.

Renovation allows you to enhance the spaces according to your personal taste or generate income through tourist rentals, taking advantage of the area's evocative charm and its appeal to those seeking the quality of life typical of Lazio's villages.
